The Waveland Board of Mayor and Aldermen on Tuesday discussed routine matters including the groundbreaking of the community center at Martin Luther King, Jr. Park on Herlihy Street, and the effects of the Bonnet Carre Spillway opening.

Waveland Mayor Mike Smith said that the city hosted a groundbreaking for the community prior to Tuesday's meeting.

Smith said that construction is scheduled to begin on June 10.

The 1,200-square-foot community center will house a concession stand, outdoor and indoor restrooms, and a community kitchen.

Smith said that the current community center and bathrooms were constructed around 1965.

"It's going to provide a nice community center that can be rented, and it's going to serve a lot of purposes," he said. "It's very welcoming and I can't wait until it's finished."

The board awarded the $488,000 contract to David Rush Construction, LLC at its May 7 meeting. The project is made possible by funds from MDA.

In a separate matter, Smith said that he attended a meeting last week in Biloxi about the salinity in the water coming out of the Bonnet Carre Spillway.

"As of today, we have zero salinity off our shores," Smith said. "Yes, it directly affects Waveland because of all the people that live here."

Smith said he believes that Hancock County has plans to declare a state of emergency and that Waveland will follow suit.

"It's to get the money or the help for the wonderful fishermen because we have no shrimp, no fish, no crabs, no dolphins, and the poor oysters are dead in the water," Smith said.

"It's going to be sometime before that is corrected."

After a public hearing on 410 Wainwright St., the board took no further action, and the order to demolish stands, based on the building official's Josh Hayes' findings that the structure is unsafe and a

In January 2018, when Hancock County Court Judge Trent Favre took the bench, there were 389 children in custody.

As of Thursday, there are 150 children in custody, Hancock County Youth Court staff attorney Kelly Creely said. Of that 389, 129 have been reunited with family members.

The purpose is to provide a welcoming and safe atmosphere for families. An open house is scheduled for today from 5 to 6 p.m. at the Hancock County Youth Court located on Court Street.

At that point, officials decide if the case can be

USM to Take Scientific Lead in Investigating Effects of Bonnet Carré Spillway Re-opening

SEA COAST ECHO

A team of University of Southern Mississippi (USM) researchers is working to advance the state of Mississippi's scientific understanding and the public's comprehension of the effects of the re-opening of Bonnet Carré Spillway on the Mississippi Sound.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers made an unprecedented decision to open the spillway located in St. Charles Parish, La., for the second time in 2019 on May 10 in order to reduce the risk of flooding in southeast Louisiana due to dangerous levels of sustained rainfall in the area. The spillway regulates the flow of water from the Mississippi River into Lake Pontchartrain and eventually the Gulf of Mexico. The flow of freshwater into the Mississippi Sound, which runs east to west along the Gulf Coast, has the potential to significantly impact water quality and marine life, as well as tourism and the Coast's economy.

"The state of Mississippi has a strong and reliable partner in The University of Southern Mississippi," Gov. Phil Bryant said. "The work of their research team will be critical in ensuring that our communities and federal government are informed of the adverse effects of the Bonnet Carré Spillway opening. I appreciate the continued collaboration between academia and government as we work to meet the needs of the people of Mississippi."

USM researchers from its School of Ocean Science and Engineering, located at the Marine Research Center in Gulfport, the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs, and the John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, have begun a thorough examination of the spillway's effects on the Mississippi Sound and will continue their work for as long as the effects are measurable and impactful.

"This work is a priority for The University of Southern Mississippi in the immediate future as USM researchers all along the Gulf Coast continue to pursue advanced understanding of this critical body of water," said University President Rodney D. Bennett. "I am proud that USM is best positioned to lead this important work, and our efforts will reflect our significant commitment to the Mississippi Gulf Coast, as well as our responsibility to the state as a leader in public higher education and research."

USM is one of only 130 universities in the nation to earn the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education's "R1: Doctoral Universities – Very high research activity" designation, and its robust research enterprise includes experts in ocean science and engineering, among many other fields. USM is coordinating research efforts with the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources, the state's marine resource management and regulatory agency.

"The University of Southern Mississippi houses a diverse array of scientific expertise suited to explore and understand these types of events with significant coastal impacts," said Dr. Monty Graham, Director of USM's School of Ocean Science and Engineering. "Specifically, we'll be using various technologies and projects to gather data on biological resources such as oysters and crabs, monitor water quality components, use remote sensing and circulation modeling, and survey the impacts to seagrass, artificial reefs and channels."

The University's findings will be made publicly available and will be consistently communicated to state leaders and the general public.

"South Mississippi's greatest resource is our Gulf, and we owe it to the people and ecosystem whose lives are directly impacted by the opening of the spillway to be transparent in our findings. Routine public updates will be provided as our analyses continue to evolve," said Dr. Read Hendon, Associate Director for the School of Ocean Science and Engineering's Gulf Coast Research Laboratory. "Our scientists have dedicated their lives to better understanding our local waters to help protect both the marine life and those who utilize the Gulf."

"Our commitment to the Mississippi Gulf Coast is to help explain, and, when possible, provide solutions to the effects of the spillway's re-opening," Bennett said. "I am confident the depth and breadth of our faculty's expertise will allow us to advance this critical research swiftly and provide an accurate assessment grounded in sound scientific research."

About The University of Southern Mississippi

The University of Southern Mississippi (USM) is a comprehensive public research institution delivering transformative programs on campuses in Hattiesburg and Long Beach, at teaching and research sites in central and southern Mississippi, as well as online. Founded in 1910, USM is one of only 130 universities in the nation to earn the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education's "R1: Doctoral Universities – Very high research activity" designation, and its robust research enterprise includes experts in ocean science and engineering, polymer science and engineering, and sport venue safety and security, among others. USM is also one of only 40 institutions in the nation accredited in theatre, art and design, dance and music. As an economic driver, USM generates an annual economic impact of more than $600 million across the state. USM welcomes a diverse student body of approximately 15,000, representing 71 countries, all 50 states, and every county in Mississippi. USM students have collected four Truman Scholarships and 36 National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowships, while also leading Mississippi with 24 Goldwater Scholarships, an honor that recognizes the next generation of great research scientists. Home to the Golden Eagles, USM competes in 17 Division I sports sponsored by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). For more information, visit usm.edu.

Gulf Coast plays huge role in state economy

In the first quarter of 2019, the state of Mississippi gained more private capital investment, creating new jobs that put more Mississippians on career paths.

So far this year, projects announced average more than one each week with private capital investment exceeding $546 million, creating 2,971 new jobs for Mississippians, driving strong economic growth.

In 2018, companies invested more than $1.1 billion in Mississippi, creating over 5,100 new jobs on projects involving the Mississippi Development Authority and our partners.

A record number of Mississippians are working today. Incomes are up, and unemployment is down. Mississippians are winning.

The Mississippi Gulf Coast plays a huge role in our state's economic success story.

Since the beginning of 2019, four companies have invested $128 million on the Coast, creating more than 1,025 jobs.

These economic development wins are the result of the effective teamwork of local economic development professionals, Gulf Coast Business Council, the South Mississippi Planning and Development District and utility companies, as well as the University of Southern Mississippi, Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College, Pearl River Community College and the State Workforce Investment Board in concert with K-12 education all working together with MDA.

In Mississippi, we win with people who give the state a workforce advantage. The men and women who make our industries successful complement the industrial sites, buildings and communities making Mississippi the place where companies can achieve their goals in today's global economy.

Evidence of this fact is that Mississippi's exports exceeded $11.8 billion in 2018, which is 7.4 percent above 2017, driving our state's $109 billion Gross Domestic Product, a 10-year high.

The Coast's rich history with the seafood industry, coupled with the casinos and family attractions, is a vital part of Mississippi's economy. Last year, 24 million visitors to our state spent $6.5 billion, which generated more than $405 million for the general fund.

From around the world, people come to enjoy our fresh Gulf seafood, fish in our bountiful waters, visit our casinos and play golf.

Tourism is a growing part of Mississippi's economy led by dedicated convention and visitor center profession-

Wicker Marks the Passing of Senator Thad Cochran

America Loses a Giant of the United States Senate

In the days since the death of Senator Thad Cochran, there have been numerous tributes and statements of appreciation for his life and legacy. It is fitting that so many have honored one of our most distinguished statesmen.

As a college student in 1972, I was a door-to-door volunteer for his first-ever campaign, viewing him as a hopeful symbol for the future of our state. That began a lifetime of friendship. When I ran for the U.S. House of Representatives in 1994, then-Senator Cochran campaigned alongside me, and he served as a role model once I arrived in Washington.

Senator Cochran and I were both born in Pontotoc, and we used to tell a story on the campaign trail about how we were even delivered in the same room of the Rayburn Clinic, he in 1937 and I in 1951. Only later did we learn that the clinic had moved down the street in the years between and that we had not even been born in the same building. Still, remembering the story made us smile from time to time and was emblematic of our friendship. As a former campaigner and eventually his Senate colleague, I have always been grateful for Thad Cochran.

THOUGH MUCH IS TAKEN, MUCH ABIDES

Senator Cochran shared his keen intellect and servant heart with everyone he met, becoming an Eagle Scout, accomplished pianist, valedictorian, student leader, ensign in the Navy, lawyer, Congressman, and Senator. His first job was at Gunn's Dairy Bar in Jackson. His last was as the 10th longest-serving senator in U.S. history. To paraphrase Tennyson, though much is taken with this loss, much abides of his enduring legacy.

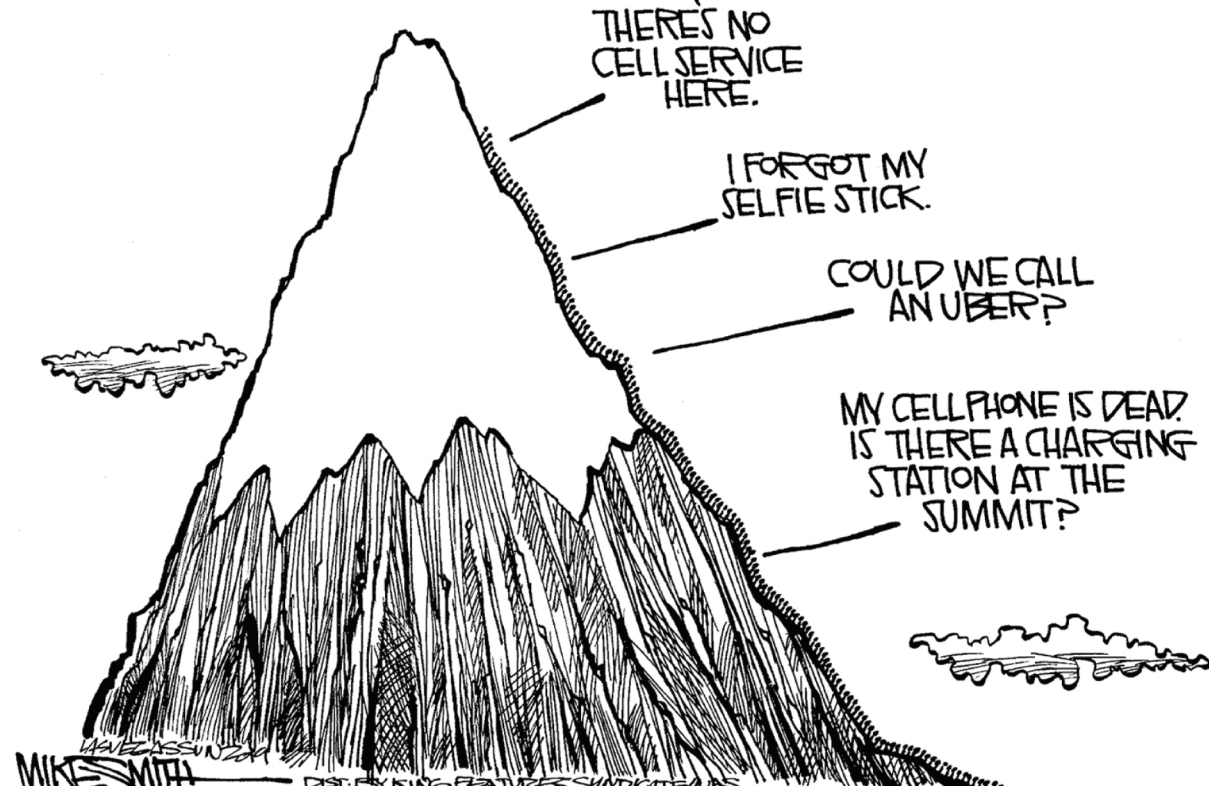

He was the first

Republican elected to statewide office from Mississippi since Reconstruction. He took his commitment to represent and work for all Mississippians seriously, hiring the first African-American congressional staffer from our state in one hundred years.

Farmers know his work to strengthen agricultural communities during his chairmanships of the Agriculture and Appropriations Committees. With his help, our growers took their skills and knowhow to train more than 18,000 of their counterparts from around the world through the Cochran Fellowship Program. Time to scale back Mississippi's regulatory burden

It would take the average person more than 13 weeks to wade through the 9.3 million words and 117,558 restrictions in Mississippi's regulatory code.

This is according to an analysis from James Broughel and Jonathan Nelson at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University. They have taken a deep dive into the regulatory burdens of each state, including Mississippi.

What do regulations look like in Mississippi? In terms of government subdivisions, the biggest regulator, by far, is the Department of Health, with more than 20,000 regulations. That is followed by the Department of Human Services with over 12,000 regulations, and 10,000 plus regulations for state boards, commissions, and examiners. The most regulated industries were ambulatory healthcare services, administrative and support services, and mining (except oil and gas).

Overall, Mississippi was middle of the pack when it came to administrative regulations. It would take 31 weeks to read all 22.5 million words in the New York Codes, Rules and Regulations, which has 307,636 restrictions. But regardless of the state, there is generally one consistent – the number of regulations are only increasing.

Regulatory growth has a detrimental effect on economic growth. We now have a history of empirical data on the relationship between regulations and economic growth. A 2013 study in the Journal of Economic Growth estimates that federal regulations have slowed the U.S. growth rate by 2 percentage points a year, going back to 1949. A recent study by the Mercatus Center estimates that federal regulations have slowed growth by 0.8 percent since 1980. If we had imposed a cap on regulations in 1980, the economy would be $4 trillion larger, or about $13,000 per person. Real numbers, and real money, indeed.

On the international side, researchers at the World Bank have estimated that countries with a lighter regulatory touch grow 2.3 percentage points faster than countries with the most burdensome regulations. And yet another study, this published by the Quarterly Journal of Economics, found that heavy regulation leads to more corruption, larger unofficial economies, and less competition, with no improvement in public or private goods.

A prescription for lowering the regulatory burden on a state is the one-in-two-out rule, or a regulatory cap. In 2017, one of President Donald Trump's first executive orders was championing higher education programs here at home, including for Historically Black Colleges and Universities and in rural areas like the Mississippi Delta.

He was a strong and effective voice for America’s defense infrastructure, including shipbuilding programs for the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. He also led the National Missile Defense Act of 1999, which created our current missile defense program.

Senator Cochran cast more than 13,000 votes during his career. But one moment in particular cemented his place in the Magnolia State’s history. In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, the worst natural disaster our nation has ever seen, he led his colleagues to secure billions of dollars to rebuild. The Gulf Coast has come back today in no small part because of these actions.

‘THE QUIET PERSUADER’

Though Senator Cochran was one of the most powerful people in Washington, he did not seek attention. He was on Meet the Press only twice in his 45 years of public service. He faithfully represented all Mississippians and earned the nickname “the Quiet Persuader.”

When he left the Senate, he said, “I am optimistic about the future of our great nation, and in the United States Senate’s role in determining that future.” I am, too. The example of Thad Cochran should give all Americans reason to be optimistic.

Burden

to require at least two prior regulations to be identified for elimination for every new regulation issued. This is badly needed. We have gone from 400,000 federal regulations in 1970 to over 1.1 million today.

Many years ago, British Columbia took on a similar mission. And in less than two decades, their regulatory requirements have decreased by 48 percent. The result has been an economic revival for the Canadian province.

And one state has the unique ability to rewrite their book on regulations. This year, the state of Idaho essentially repealed their entire state code book when the legislature adjourned without renewing the regulations, something they are required to do each session because the state has an automatic sunset provision.

Now, the governor of Idaho is tasked with implementing an emergency regulation on any rule that should remain. The legislature will consider them next year. There are certainly needed regulations, just as there are unnecessary or outdated regulations that serve little purpose. But, the difference is, the burden on regulations now switches from the governor or legislature needing to justify why a regulation should be removed to justifying why we need to keep a regulation.

Whether it’s a sunset provision or one-in-two-out policy, Mississippi should move in the direction toward a smaller regulatory state with more freedom. And if a regulation is truly important to our well-being, let the regulators prove why. In a state in need of economic growth, let’s find a way to remove unnecessary barriers and inhibitors.

Brett Kittredge is the Director of Marketing and Communications for Mississippi Center for Public Policy, the state’s non-partisan, free-market think tank.

pushed the "Safe at Home" initiative.

"The goal is to keep children safe at home," Favre said at the Jan. 22 Hancock County supervisors meeting. "It's a national and state effort to provide in-home services instead of removal due to the trauma of the child. Children are traumatized when they are removed from their parents. They need to go home safely and that is what we are doing in our youth court."

"The celebration is for the parents that really worked hard and proved to the court that they deserve their children," Creely said. "The parents did everything the courts asked and it's really hard for parents when they've been told you can't raise your kids."

The Family Reunification Celebration, which is co-sponsored by Child Protective Services, CASA, and Hancock County Youth Court, is scheduled for June 20 from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Old Town Community Center, located above the parking garage on Court Street in Bay St. Louis.

Parents who were involved with the Hancock County Youth Court, and reunited with their children between Jan. 1, 2018 to present, are invited to attend.

There will be select speakers, workers from local agencies, a photo booth by Snaparzzi, cake provided by Silver Slipper Casino, and sno-balls provided by Paule's snowballs.

manager of the Hancock County Tourism bureau, said last week. "They've been filming around the area for the past two weeks, and they're already running promos for the broadcast. ... We want a big crowd to show up."

The big "twist" for this year's event, Green said, is that "it will be a tribute to our veterans."

She's asking all veterans to come by the Depot for the event, in uniform or street clothes, to receive special honors.

People who want to participate are asked to be at the Depot by 4:15 p.m. Wednesday.

"The more people we have here for the broadcast, the better," Green said.

The event will also offer a sneak peek at PT-305, a patrol-torpedo boat that was actually in service during World War II. The National World War II Museum in New Orleans fully restored the boat and will be bringing it to the Bay St. Louis Municipal Harbor for tours on Saturday, June 22, from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.; and Sunday, June 23, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

WGNO has already been running promotions for the live broadcast, prominently featuring Bay St. Louis to New Orleans viewers.

The News With a Twist promotion was arranged by the Hancock County Tourism Bureau to attract New Orleans-area residents to all the fun, food, culture and shopping available in Hancock County.

"It gives us an hour of primetime television promotion in New Orleans," Green said. "You can't hardly buy that kind of exposure."

About PT-305

According to the National WWII Museum's website, "built in New Orleans by Higgins Industries, the patrol-torpedo (PT) boat PT-305 was a critical asset for the US Navy during World War II, serving in European waters from 1944 to the end of the war. Heavily armed, equipped with advanced technology, uniquely maneuverable, often ingeniously modified, and reliant on cooperation and teamwork, PT boats were a perfect naval expression of the American Spirit at war.

With small crews within collaborative 12-ship squadrons, they were also the home to a colorful collection of Navy sailors and a dramatic backdrop for moving personal stories of war, including the trials of cramped quarters, the terrifying thrill of combat, and humorous tales of shore-leave escapades.

"Following her wartime service, PT-305 served as a New York tour boat, a fishing charter, and an oyster boat, undergoing modifications along the way: new, less-costly engines; several new paint jobs; and a dramatic reduction in length. When she was acquired by The National WWII Museum, PT-305 was in dry dock in Galveston, Texas, and in serious disrepair. In April 2007, accompanied by Museum curators, PT-305 found her way back to New Orleans, where The National WWII Museum became her home on land until she could be restored to her former glory."

Volunteers donated more than 120,000 hours to restore PT-305.

For more information about the boat or the tour at Bay St. Louis Municipal Harbor, call 504-528-1944, ext. 40s, or email pt305@nationalww2museum.org.

North, South, and Beyond

We had a big crew out at the Cat Island House recently. Dr. Lori Marshall and her husband Derek had been planning the trip for over a year. It was a vacation/Birthday Party for their son William. So, along with 4 adults, also came 6 young men from the Madison, MS area.

Some of the 12 year old-ish fellas have fished with us before. This would be several of the others first time in salt water. We really enjoy having this age out on the boats. They are big enough to help, and genuinely interested in everything outdoorsy.

With the spill way water flooding into the Mississippi Sound, salt water was scarce at Cat Island. We worked hard for them, and caught plenty of fish. The boys got to catch gobs of white trout, several nice specks, a few redfish, and plenty of bull sharks.

SHORE THING FISHING REPORT

by Capt. Sonny Schindler

This would be as much a learning trip, as it was a fishing trip.

There were an incredible amount of boaters on the water. Every time one of the boaters would do something wrong, I would calmly explain what happened, and why it was wrong. I would also let them know why we would have to idle or drift past other boaters. Hopefully, some of these lessons in boaters etiquette will stick, if they are ever running their own boats.

I'm glad these young men got to see the fresh water covering up our area. They got to experience what it looked like during this historic flood. Many of these youngsters hunt, or have friends/family up in the MS Delta region as well. Several of them have seen and experienced first hand what this flooding can do up north and down south. My hope for this future generation of Sportsman, is that they can help improve things, anything better than this current situation. This plan maybe one of them becoming a hydrologist. Another solution may involve them simply voting for a candidate in an election that will help fix flooding issues. Hopefully they remember everything from their trip, and use it to leave things better, for the next generation. Happy Birthday William, hope y'all enjoyed it as much as we did!!!

‘SERVIO DEO’

Volunteers perform various community service projects in Waveland and Bay St. Louis

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

This week, more than 200 teen volunteers from three parishes in Nashville, Tennessee participated in several community service projects throughout Waveland, Bay St. Louis, and Long Beach.

The youths are participating in an observance of Servio Deo, which means, "Serving God," in Latin, group chaperrone Misty Welsch said.

This is the ninth year the student volunteers — ranging in age from 12-18 years-old — raised money to travel to the Mississippi Gulf Coast to complete community service, Welsch said. They also boarded at St. Stanislaus dormitories.

Welsch said that the decision to come to the Bay-Waveland area was inspired by Lisa Vegors, who grew up in the area.

"After Hurricane Katrina, the mission felt called to do service here after the devastation," Welsch said.

This year, some of the volunteers teamed up with Keep Waveland Beautiful.

On Wednesday morning, several of the teenagers braved the rain to continue planting sod at the town green and beautifying the entrance to the Waveland Ground Zero Hurricane Museum.

Keep Waveland Beautiful co-chair Bernie Cullen said that more than 75 volunteers worked on beautification projects throughout the city.

"They worked Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the hot sun and rain to help," Cullen said. "The projects they completed for us are amazing!"

At the town green on Coleman Avenue, the volunteers painted the gazebo, laid sod, weeded all the gardens, and planted trees, flowers, and shrubs.

They also cleaned, weeded, pruned, planted, and mulched at the Ground Zero Museum and Gex and Bourgeois parks.

At city hall, volunteers cleaned the front and inside of the building.

They also picked up litter along the beach and planted crepe myrtle trees and ground cover on Auderer Boulevard.

Group members also installed a flower bed by the Clermont Harbor/Waveland sign on Beach Boulevard and pruned, weeded, and protected all the trees along Coleman Avenue.

"Everything looked beautiful and clean," Cullen said. "We could never have done this without them! Their work ethic, enthusiasm, and love of service is so obvious.

They were a joy to work beside and we will never be able to express our gratitude. We can't wait to see them again next year. KWB also wants to thank our mayor, city clerk, aldermen, and every employee for supporting this crazy, busy week. We thank them for financing these projects and for all their support."

Cullen also thanked Lowe's and Hubbard's for their contribution of supplies and plants.

Volunteers also returned to the Hancock County Senior Center this year to provide assistance to seniors.

Senior Center Director Arlene Johnson said that they painted sheds and porches; installed floor tile; cleaned yards and removed debris; and washed the seniors' cars.

"They took the time to sit down with our seniors and made them feel special," Johnson said. "They all love Bay St. Louis."

Sean Schneider, 12, said it was his first time attending the mission trip and he said he enjoyed working alongside his friends.

Jack Mills, 13, said that "everyone is so grateful for what we do," and it's "awesome seeing smiles on their faces."

SEA COAST ECHO

Members of the 2018/2019 Leadership Hancock Class met for the graduation ceremony and banquet at the Silver Slipper Casino and Hotel last night.

Managed by the Hancock Chamber Leadership Steering Committee, the mission of the program is to support current and emerging leaders by facilitating them in developing their skills, creating community awareness, building relationships and embracing issues impacting Hancock County. Since the program was founded in 1996, 700 community members have graduated from Leadership Hancock.

“Effective leaders improve quality of life for our communities,” said Tish Williams, executive director of the Hancock Chamber. “Leadership Hancock makes our communities a better place to live by developing and engaging leaders.”

During the graduation banquet, Ron Barnes, CEO of Coast Electric Power Association, delivered the keynote speech focusing on the 25 traits of effective leaders. Barnes said effective leaders surround themselves with the best in their field of work. They take responsibility and put the team above themselves. Barnes believes that effective teams demonstrate they care for others by winning together and losing together. He also said that great leaders like to strategize, plan and find ways to measure results. He believes that effective leaders put others before themselves. They are generous and caring and focus on helping others succeed. They are trustworthy, ethical and know how to clearly communicate. They are confident, passionate and ambitious. And he stresses if you are going to set out to do something, don’t do it half way. Share your vision. Lead by example. Demonstrate integrity. Listen and learn. “The number one thing all people want is to believe they are making a difference,” he said.

“Through Leadership Hancock, graduates are making a positive difference by actively serving our community everywhere, every day,” said Williams.

Leadership Hancock is open to residents of Hancock County or anyone who is employed in Hancock County. The annual fee to participate is $595 per person and applications are open now through July 31st. To apply go to www.hancockchamber.org. Companies and alumni are invited to support the program as sponsors. For information on how to sponsor the program, contact Tish Williams at 228-467-9048 or email her at tish@ Hancockchamber.org. Sponsorships are open to sponsor one of the 11 program days, to support a named scholarships and underwrite one of the two receptions.

Do Not Cry Over Sour Milk

BY LINDA BIGLER
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

There is almost nothing more frustrating than going to the refrigerator for a glass of cold milk, only to discover that it is the consistency of cottage cheese. Do not throw it down the drain; there are many dishes which can be prepared using the outdated liquid. If you are concerned about becoming ill from consuming it, do not be concerned; if the milk has been pasteurized it will not harm your digestive system.

Are you aware that the more fat the milk contains, the longer it will last? Skim milk is usually the first to bite the dust, while heavy cream can last two to three months past the expiration date. I recently made scones with heavy cream I purchased in December.

The first recipe is for fried chicken. Do not let the chicken sit in the sour milk for more than two hours; if you do, the texture of the chicken will be off putting.

SPICY FRIED CHICKEN

8 to 10 pieces of chicken (white meat, dark meat, or a combination; your choice)

1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons Creole seasoning
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt
One half teaspoon pepper
Oil for frying

Combine milk and cayenne in a small bowl. Place chicken pieces in a nonreactive baking dish and pour the milk mixture over the chicken. Cover and chill for no longer than 2 hours.

In a large skillet, heat about one and a half inches of vegetable oil to 350 degrees.

Combine remaining ingredients, except for oil, in a plastic bag and shake well to combine. Add half of the chicken pieces to the bag, close the bag, and shake to evenly coat the chicken. Place in hot oil, skin side down and cook about 8 minutes; turn and cook about 5 additional minutes. Cover, reduce heat, and cook an additional 15 minutes. Remove cover, turn the chicken and cook for about three more minutes or until chicken tests done. Place on a paper towel lined baking sheet and keep warm in a 250-degree oven. Repeat with remaining chicken pieces. If you are using both dark and white meat chicken; the white meat will take less time to cook. Serves 4

JALAPENO CORN BREAD

2- and one-half cups yellow cornmeal
1 cup all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon salt
3 large eggs
1- and one-half cup sour milk
One stick butter (4 ounces)
1 can cream style corn
8 pickled jalapeno peppers, minced
8 ounces pepper Jack cheese, grated
One bunch green onions, thinly sliced

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Place butter in a 11x9 inch baking dish and melt in oven. Do not allow it to burn. Remove from oven and set aside.

Combine dry ingredients in a medium bowl. Combine eggs, milk, cream corn, and melted butter in a separate bowl and whisk well. Stir into dry ingredients until combined. Fold in the peppers, cheese, and sliced green onions. Pour into the pan which the butter was melted and bake for 35 to 40 minutes or until done. Makes 12 to 16 servings

HOT ROLLS IN A HURRY

4 to 4 and a half cups all-purpose flour
2 packages dry yeast
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
One half teaspoon baking soda
1 and one fourth cups sour milk
One half cup water
One stick butter (4 ounces)

Additional butter will be needed to grease the pan and brush on finished rolls.

Combine 1- and one-half cups flour, yeast, sugar, salt and, baking soda in a large bowl. Place remaining ingredients in a microwave safe bowl and microwave on high 30 seconds, stir and heat an additional 30 seconds or until temperature reaches 120 to 130 degrees. With mixer on low speed, slowly pour the liquid ingredients into the dry ingredients. Increase the speed of the mixer to medium and beat for about 3 minutes. Reduce speed to low and add the remaining dry ingredients. Mix until well combined. Turn the dough onto a board lightly dusted with flour. Knead until dough is smooth and elastic. Place dough in a greased bowl, cover, and let rise until doubled; about 1 hour.

Coat 2 8- inch round or square baking pans with softened butter. When dough has risen, turn onto the floured board, and shape into 24 balls. Place into greased baking pans, cover with a clean kitchen towel and let rise for 45 minutes or until doubled.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees and bake for 20 to 25 minutes. Remove from oven, brush with melted butter, and serve. Makes 24 rolls

CHOCOLATE CAKE

2 sticks butter (8 ounces) softened
2 cups sugar
3 large eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 cups all-purpose flour
One half cup cocoa powder
1 teaspoon baking powder

One half teaspoon salt
One half teaspoon baking soda

One- and one-half cups sour milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour 11x9 inch baking pan and line the bottom with parchment paper.

Combine butter and sugar in a mixing bowl and beat on medium speed until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well before adding another egg. Add vanilla extract and beat until incorporated. Combine flour, cocoa powder, baking powder, salt, and baking soda. With the mixer on low speed, alternately add dry ingredients and sour milk to creamed ingredients. Start and end with dry ingredients. Increase speed of mixer to medium and beat for 2 minutes. Pour into prepared pan and bake for 40 minutes or until cake tests done. Frost with cream cheese frosting or frosting of your choice.

Cream Cheese Frosting:
1 – 8-ounce block cream cheese, room temperature
1 stick butter (4 ounces), room temperature
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1-pound powdered sugar
2 tablespoons cocoa powder, optional

Cream together cream cheese, butter, and vanilla until well combined. With mixer at low speed, slowly add the powdered sugar and beat at medium speed for about 5 minutes. Spread frosting over the cake and dust with cocoa powder if desired. Serves 12

If you cannot use the sour milk right away, freeze it in one cup increments and use it when you are in the mood to cook. Just do not use the milk if it has turned green. I do not know if it will harm you, but why take the chance?

Her Dog Knows Many Words

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Can dogs really understand what we're saying? Well, my little rat terrier, "Adam," understands many words, such as "hot" when he gets too close to my coffee. He backs away quickly. He also picks up many words from our conversations, such as "cook" or "hungry." I always tell him a person's name when they meet him for the first time. Once, the woman he met was named Laura, so that's what I told him. He looked at her, then at me, then back to her. He knows that my daughter's name is Laura, and this wasn't "his" Laura! —Anita T., Chicopee, Massachusetts

DEAR ANITA: You've got one smart dog there! Some dogs do seem to understand new words, names or associations faster or better than other dogs. And a research study published last year seems to back that up. An evaluation of 12 dogs of different breeds found that they could tell the difference between words they had previously heard and words that they hadn't. The words they "knew" were the ones used when training them to distinguish between two objects. What was interesting is that when the dogs heard unfamiliar words or even "gibberish," their neural centers for auditory processing were more active than when they heard familiar words. This is the opposite of the way our auditory processing activates. The researchers said it's likely because the dogs were trying hard to understand what their humans were saying to them. It's really cool that Adam can associate a familiar person with her name, Laura, and it seems clear that he noticed a difference. Now, will he identify "new Laura" and "old Laura" in the future? That's definitely something to watch for.

Meet sweet, mellow Tipsey. Unfortunately, this 8 to 10 year old frosted faced beauty finds herself in an animal shelter, rather than enjoying her golden years with her family. It is suspected that Tipsey's owners moved and left her behind to fend for herself. Sadly, Tipsey's guardian angel, who was fostering her, is in declining health and could no longer care for her. Tipsey is likely a Labrador Retriever/Golden Retriever mix, and she is wonderful with all of our staff and volunteers. She is friendly with the doggies in her living area, but her playing days are over; she is arthritic and has several "fat lumps." (Who doesn't, right?) Instead, she looks forward to gentle, short walks, tummy rubs, and lots of love and cuddles. Tipsey has lots of love and companionship to give her forever family. Please help us find her the loving home that she deserves. We do not want her to spend a moment longer in a shelter environment. Please drop by the shelter at 7175 Texas Flat Rd, Kiln, Mon-Fri, 10-4, to meet Tipsey. She will win you over with her calm, loving nature and sweet personality. For more information, call 228 466 4516. Also visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Tipsey and of the many other wonderful, adoptable animals looking for their forever homes.

A VIEW OF GOD'S NATURAL BEAUTY

BY GARY ANDREWS
GARY@GADEVOTIONALS.COM

Not long ago my wife and I, along with three other couples, made a trip out west to visit the Grand Canyon. It had been many years since I had seen the canyon and this was the first trip for my wife and some of the others.

It is a breath-taking experience to view this wonder of the world. How anyone could see the beauty and magnificence of this landmark and contradict the existence of the Lord is beyond my understanding. Even though the guide we had tried to explain how this extraordinary and magnificent piece of art came to being, he finally had to admit that this was the work of the Lord even though he gave scientific reasons of why and how the canyon was created through erosion.

He told us it started as a flat piece of land and over the last 500,000 plus years how the wind and water made this giant hole in the earth. He told of the different layers of rock and gave us reasons why and how the evolution of science brought this site into being and what it will look like again in several thousands of years. He also predicted that our future generations will not see what we are seeing today because of the natural erosion of the earth.

As he spoke to us I had to wonder how our life is comparable to the Grand Canyon. How do we allow something made by God to be corrupted and eroded from a miracle that only God can make? Why have we allowed ourselves to get away from God's Word and Creation to find our own resolutions of what happened and when?

I firmly believe that God creates no mistakes. I also firmly believe that we, as God's people, allow Satan to attack us and give in to his temptations. Satan's reasoning for doing things his way erode our lives to the point that we question God, His creation and judgment. Satan provides beautiful pictures of what is around us and how we can flourish if we follow him and it seems that most of the world has given into his reasoning not thinking of the consequences in the end.

If we continue to allow Satan to use us for his purposes and we continually say that God had no part in His creation, then we are doomed for the gates of Hades with no possibility of redemption.

Sin erodes our lives and takes us deeper and deeper into sin until we either succumb to the pressures of the earth and mankind or we turn our lives over to Jesus with the promise of an eternal home.

The Grand Canyon is a natural beauty created by a loving God for all of His people to enjoy. Yes it was created through erosion and will possibly disappear one day but it will be through God's plan and in His time. Man, as we know him today, will have nothing to do with how long this massive site will be around and can try to explain how science created and will dissolve this natural creation.

It is the same with our soul. Satan will erode your spirit and knowledge of the Lord Jesus as long as you let him. When we take our eyes off of Jesus and let Satan have his way then we are going to struggle with temptation and give in to worldly views.

Don't let Satan control your life. Ask Jesus to come into your life and guide you through time and create the being that He will be satisfied with.

Prayer: Thank you Lord for the natural wonders and beauty of this earth that you created and gave to us for enjoyment. I pray that others will realize that you are in control and not man. Lead me and guide me to do your work and be your witness. Amen. Gary Andrews is the author of Encouraging Words: 30-days in God's Word. To obtain a copy go to his website www.gadevotionals.com.

said that he was "blessed to be able to come down and help those that are here."

Joshua Ladd,13, said this was his first time performing community service.

Since he wasn't born when Hurricane Katrina came ashore in 2005, Ladd said he first heard about it while watching The Weather Channel when he was about six years old.

"I was like, 'that's a really big storm,'" he said.

Grace Buettner,14, said she loves volunteering and connecting with God during the mission trip.

"There are programs in the morning and a band comes at night to sing," she said.

Riley Schneider,12, said it was her first time performing service work and it's been a "great experience."

Ashley Brubaker,11, said she wanted to help people.

"It's hard when you have your lives turned upside down," she said. "I want to help make it better."

Sydney Chapski,12, said she learned she is good at painting and also learned how to garden and plant grass.

"I like helping people," she said. "God gave us a gift and I have to share that. I also learned how grateful I am for everything I have."

Jordyn Sieders,13, said this was the first time she's been away from home.

"I felt like this would be a great opportunity for me," she said. "I've enjoyed the smiles I've put on people's faces."

Ainsley Howard,13, said this was her second time volunteering on the Gulf Coast.

"Everyone is nice, funny, and caring here," she said. "It's nice to have a community come together and smile. They got hurt by the hurricane and some lost family members. I want to make people smile and let them know people are there for them and that they didn't lose it all."

Teacher

Church of Biloxi where she teaches Vacation Bible School as well as helps assist behind the scenes with baptisms.

When asked what her thoughts and passions are for education, Mrs. Wilson responded with, "Every child that walks through my classroom door is welcomed into a nurturing and engaging learning environment. This invitation extends to not just students, but all staff, parents, and administration that I have had the pleasure of working with. Higher expectations and excellence can be met when we are all working together as a team. As an educator, I try to focus on the talents of my students and colleagues. I teach my students that the greatest obstacle we face is not always open number lines, solving multi-step word problems, decoding unfamiliar words, or comprehending what we have just read. The majority of the time, our greatest challenge is getting out of our own way to success. Our tone and attitude can change our thoughts from negative to positive when we are faced with new ways of learning or challenges. This takes practice, and I am no perfectionist when it comes to having a great mindset and facing challenges, but I strive to not be reactive and be proactive instead. I surround myself with like-minded people and lean on them for guidance. I believe my students thrived this year because of this and I was open to new ways of teaching. On a personal note, I was the student that could not read until I was in the fourth grade. I slipped through the cracks somehow and my attitude towards reading was a poor one. I did not understand phonics and I made it my mission to invest in learning how to teach reading to my students. I had patient teachers that guided me and I have incredible parents that continue to remind me to never give up. When I see a child breaking apart words with syllabication and no longer getting stuck and giving up, my heart just heals a little bit from my own experience as a child. I live vicariously through their "light bulb" moments and it makes it all worth the effort on both our parts. Once you know how to read, it can NEVER be taken away from you. I tell my students that reading can take you on amazing adventures without even moving and that it can also be an escape when things are not going well. It is a precious gift that should not be taken for granted. It is downright MAGICAL! I am so grateful that I get to come and invest in the future for the Pass Christian School District. The grace of God has been with me during every high and low of this school year. I am proud to be a PIRATE! I have found where to drop my anchor."
